Century Furniture Introduces Century Lighting, Debuting at High Point International Furniture Market

HIGH POINT, N.C. – Century Furniture is proud to announce the launch of Century Lighting, a new product category that expands the company's celebrated craftsmanship into the world of illumination. The collection will make its debut at the upcoming High Point International Furniture Market and feature over forty distinctive designs, including table lamps, floor lamps, sconces, and chandeliers.

Rooted in the same North Carolina heritage that defines Century's furniture, the lighting collection carries forward the company's commitment to enduring quality and meticulous detail. The same spirit of craftsmanship found in Century's joinery and finishing techniques now extends to the artistry in their fixturing.

Highlights of the new introductions include:

Halo Series: Featuring an interchangeable shade system that lets you effortlessly switch between Plaster, Woven, and Linen shades to coordinate perfectly with upholstery, window treatments, and surrounding textures. With two shapes, four sizes, and three materials, the collection offers endless combinations—delivering tailored style with infinite possibilities.

Cathedral Lantern: Designed for rooms that demand presence, the Cathedral Lantern features substantial proportions engineered specifically for grand spaces where standard fixtures disappear. Rooted in the principle that proportion is the foundation of luxury, its architectural scale brings balance and visual gravity to high-ceilinged interiors.

Torel Series: Created for the modernist sensibility, the Torel Series explores the intersection of structure and softness. Vertical cylinders of luminous opal glass are framed by precision-milled Soft Brass or Soft Nickel, creating a refined architectural rhythm that feels both sculptural and restrained.

"Lighting isn't just about fixtures," says Justin Binnix, VP of Casegoods, Outdoor and Lighting for the company. "It's about the warmth and mood that is created in a room. I am truly excited to be able to design lighting pieces that complement the furniture that we are known for and ultimately create a cohesive and all-inclusive setting for our customers."
