

Milton & King Unveils Painter's Glasshouse: Where Art, Garden and Pattern Meet

A COLLECTION SHAPED BY THE RHYTHM OF THE STUDIO AND THE BEAUTY OF THE NATURAL WORLD.

Milton & King unveils Painter's Glasshouse, a Spring Summer collection that brings together artistry, botanical influence and thoughtful design. Created to help customers realise their vision, the collection reflects the brand's commitment to craftsmanship, sustainability and print-on-demand production.

Painter's Glasshouse is told through the eyes of an artist's studio, set amongst rolling countryside and blooming gardens, reflecting the relationship between creativity and making with the natural world and how the two go hand in hand. Each design is created with versatility in mind, giving people the freedom to shape a space that feels entirely their own.

YASMIN SMITH
HEAD OF DESIGN

(Brighton, United Kingdom)

Inspired by the atmosphere of an artist's studio set within a flourishing garden, Painter's Glasshouse explores the relationship between art, craft and nature. Painterly landscapes, expressive botanicals and structured patterns come together to create interiors that feel layered, considered and personal.

Impressionist brushwork, heritage textiles and glasshouse architecture guide the collection's design language. Hand-painted florals and trailing vines introduce movement, while stripes and geometrics echo the quiet structure of garden frameworks and tiled floors.

Key highlights include:

Painterly murals – immersive designs that transform walls into expressive landscapes.

Botanical patterns – hand-painted florals and foliage that bring colour and character.

Structured coordinates – stripes and geometrics that create balance and versatility.

Printed-on-demand, each wallcovering is produced-to-order, reducing waste while maintaining exceptional quality. The collection is available across a range of substrates including:

- Non-Woven Wallpaper
- Grasscloth
- Decorative Textile
- Commercial Type II Vinyl

This approach allows designers and homeowners to work with flexibility, creating spaces that feel both refined and deeply individualised.
