The Art of What's Hidden, Sherrill Occasional Explores Form, Function, and Fine Craftsmanship

HIGH POINT, N.C. – This spring, Sherrill Occasional returns to High Point Market with a refined collection that celebrates the natural beauty of materials, the artistry of woodcraft, and the thoughtful integration of hidden function. A curated assortment of occasional statement pieces will join the line, and the brand will also expand its customization focus through additional options in its successful Custom Cabinets by Design program.

The theme of hidden function carries throughout the collection, where thoughtful design details reveal themselves through use. The Paxton Game Table's concealed cup rests support both everyday living and entertaining.

At the heart of the spring introductions is a focus on the beauty and celebration of wood. Rich burl veneers, expressive grain patterns, and nuanced, low sheen finishes transform each piece into a work of art.

In addition to new occasional product introductions, the brand continues to build out its Custom Cabinets by Design program, launched this past fall. This highly flexible program allows designers and retailers to create tailored free standing storage solutions from media centers to home by selecting from a wide range of configurations, door fronts, finishes, and hardware options. The program highlights the brand's focus on customization, quality craftsmanship, and designs made for everyday living, giving customers the flexibility to create pieces that truly fit their homes.

“From bold burl veneers to tactile raffia and customizable cabinetry, each piece this season reflects our dedication to craftsmanship, versatility, and livable luxury,” said Chuck Auten, vice president of casegoods merchandising.

Product highlights include:

W123-840 Price Cocktail Table – Designed to go with the Whittemore Sherrill leather line, the Price Cocktail Table is a sculptural statement defined by fluid lines and masterful woodcraft. Its softly contoured top features gently upturned edges that create a subtle tray-like profile, highlighting the natural movement of the wood grain. Splayed, angled legs intersect with a streamlined stretcher base, giving the table a dynamic, mid-century–inspired stance.

975-170 Paxton Game Table - The Paxton Game Table features nicely proportioned transitional clipped-corner forms, meticulously wrapped in raffia for a casual look. This versatile game table will work well in any setting, from the mountains to the coast.

975-174 Harvey Credenza – The Harvey Credenza commands attention with its dramatic burl wood pattern and smooth, architectural form. Inspired by popular Mid-Century designs by Karl Springer, the credenza features strong architectural lines with radiused curved ends and parquetry swirl burl veneer. The finish is a rich, low-sheen amber that highlights the burl veneer's dark and light tones.
