

Cappadocia Rugs Presents Four Generations of Turkish Craftsmanship at High Point Market

ATLANTA, GA, April 2026 — Cappadocia Rugs will showcase their latest collections at High Point Market this month, offering a focused, hands-on approach to design and production. As designers increasingly prioritize quality, sourcing, and origin, the company preserves centuries-old techniques, material integrity, and long-standing artisan relationships.

Founded on a family tradition that began in Anatolia, Cappadocia Rugs remains closely connected to its production source. The company oversees each stage of creation, from the loom to its warehouse in Atlanta, maintaining a direct link between artisans and the finished product. Each rug is hand-knotted using carefully sourced wool and natural dyes, which allow the colors to settle into the fibers with richness and variation that faster methods can't match. Drawing on the Oushak weaving tradition while embracing transitional and modern designs, the collection balances heritage with contemporary style.

“Our goal is to create heirlooms that can be passed down through generations, just as the artistry has been carried on through our family,” said Ahmet Koker, CEO of Cappadocia Rugs. “High Point Market is an important opportunity for us to connect with the design community and build lasting relationships.”

Selected highlights from the line include the Antalya rug, a refined interpretation of Oushak design with a softer palette and low pile. The Artisan rug features celadon, terracotta, and washed indigo tones against an ivory background, while the Pure Luxe design offers a more sculptural surface, with raised and lower pile creating tonal contrast. All collections can be customized in size, shape, color, and pattern.

Cappadocia Rugs will exhibit at High Point Market from April 25 through April 29 at the Suites at Market Square, M-8041, Mezzanine. On Saturday, April 25, the company will host an open house with the owners from 1:00 to 4:00 PM, featuring Turkish delights and light refreshments.
